1. The power projection platform of Joint Base Elmendorf-Richardson sustains many missions critical to the Combatant Commands we support and the Nation we serve. All of these missions depend on our ability to protect and conserve our installation environment in accordance with responsible stewardship practices and federal, state, and local laws and regulations.
2. In accordance with (IAW) DAFI 32-7001, Environmental Management, we commit to:
  - a. Maintaining an effective Environmental Management System (EMS) and continuously improving environmental business practices through effective planning, monitoring, review, and corrective action.
  - b. Fully implementing the Enterprise Environmental, Safety and Occupational Health Management Information System to manage hazardous materials and wastes.
  - c. Integrating environmental practices into daily decisions to manage our natural and cultural resources for mission sustainment.
  - d. Implementing pollution prevention measures to minimize hazardous material use and waste generation.
  - e. Educating and training our workforce in the use of environmentally responsible practices with the idea that all employees, residents, and visitors to the base are responsible for its environmental stewardship.
3. This guidance integrates elements of our EMS into our existing installation management structure to establish sound environmental programs. All new personnel will be provided EMS awareness training by the 673 ABW during in-processing. Additionally, all organizational directors and squadron/battalion commanders will appoint Unit Environmental Coordinators (UEC) or Environmental Officers in writing IAW DAFI 32-7001, Environmental Management and/or Army Regulation 200-1, Environmental Protection and Enhancement.
4. This guidance will be given widest dissemination and applies to the military and civilian workforce as well as contractors. It will be reviewed annually to ensure that these commitments remain consistent with the JBER mission and operational resources. For questions or additional information, please contact your UEC or our JBER Environmental Office at 384-3419.
